Not illustrated. 1908 Excerpt: . or order is not material, for the indorsee takes it with all of its incidents, including its negotiable quality. A qualified indorsement is one which restrains, or limits, or qualifies, or-enlarges the liability of the indorser, in a manner different from what the law generally imports as his true liability, deducible from the nature of the instrument, as an indorsement without recourse. An indorsement without recourse, or at the indorsee s own risk, will not expose the indorser to any liability, but such an indorsement warrants the genuineness of all prior signatures, that the endorser has title to the note, that the note is valid between the original parties, and is not illegal or without consideration, and that the parties were competent to contract. Although by such an indorsement the indorser relieves himself from liability as indorser, yet he does not thereby totally dissolve his...
